WELCOME TO FWWMUN MARRAKECH 2022

A GLOBAL INITIATIVE FOR YOUNG LEADERS

EXPERIENCING DIPLOMACY

FWWMUN begins with a series of workshops with UN Officials and Diplomats about youth involvement, the SDGs and leadership. Furthermore, during the first committee session, delegates will have the opportunity to engage at a High Level by benefitting from experts in their field on the committee topics. Previous speakers include: H.E. Tore Hattrem, President of UNICEF; H.E. Sukhbold Sukhee, Permanent Mission of Mongolia to the UN; H.E. Masud Bin Momen, Permanent Mission of Bangladesh to the UN.

A WORLD-CLASS EXPERIENCE

FWWMUN is committed to delivering a world-class experience to all the delegates in attendance, and the conference will bring together prestigious international partners to help achieve that goal. The FWWMUN is fully engaged to ensure that this conference features realistic and educational content taken directly from the UN agenda, a smooth experience for all groups to register and attend the event, and expert staff from elite colleges and universities around the world to lead your delegates throughout the event.

OUR APPROACH

A core principle of FWWMUN programming is a commitment to substantive excellence. As a Global educational conference committed to educating youth through Model United Nations programs and workshops, FWWMUN seeks to bring together future generations of leaders from all corners of the globe to gain first-hand experience in international relations, to produce high quality resolutions aimed at bringing about the Future We Want, and to submit these resolutions to relevant UN agencies and world leaders for consideration. FWWMUN is committed to building a better world by serving the United Nations and international community the UN agenda, a smooth experience for all groups to register and attend the event, and expert staff from elite colleges.

METHODOLOGY

By bringing together the social mission of FWWMUN along with a committed secretariat led by senior officers and brilliant young enthusiasts, FWWMUN, working actively with NGOs and academic institutions across the globe, will promote and educate students in leadership, international relations, and consensus-building. FWWMUN programs bring together students from around the world to meet as youth, build long-standing friendships, and learn emotional and social skills along with gaining a new level of academic understanding of the issues discussed at the United Nations. Students will develop their critical thinking skills, cross-cultural understanding, and self-confidence through this activity to go on and become Agents of Change in their communities.

ABOUT FUTURE WE WANT: A GLOBAL INITIATIVE FOR YOUNG LEADERS

Inspired by the 2012 Rio+20 Resolution, “The Future We Want”, the Conference is committed to promoting a united international community, a better future, and a more sustainable world through the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). FWWMUN has identified 10 goals from the 17 SDGs as key focus areas related to youth and education to guide the work of the organization. UN high level officials have highlighted the important role Civil Society Organisations (CSOs) and Youth NGOs play in advocating for the SDGs in their countries. FWWMUN will work closely with organizations committed to bringing about the Future We Want to help all of us address this challenge together.

The conference is the first of its kind engaging youth on all the 17 sustainable development goals. It will focus on the significance of youth voices from a plethora of backgrounds, in not only understanding, but implementing the 2030 Agenda, at all levels of the decision-making process. The conference will present a unique opportunity for a newly appointed DPI/NGO associated NGO to assert its position of placing youths at the centre of achieving the Sustainable Development Goals, the world over.

All in all, we wanted our conference in New York to be the first MUN in the world to be fully inclusive, allowing equal participation and opportunities for people from all countries. We simply wanted a MUN FOR ALL because that's the FUTURE WE WANT!

Welcome to the Future We Want Model United Nations Conference!

MESSAGE FROM ITALIAN DIPLOMATIC ACADEMY

Ladies and Gentlemen,
Excellencies,

It is with deep pride that the Italian Diplomatic Academy welcomes you today at the 15th edition of the conference Future We Want: A Global Initiative for Young Leaders – Morocco Model United Nations.

This is the first time Future We Want is being organized in an African country and we chose the beautiful country of Morocco, in the world known city of Marrakech, home of the setting framework of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development.

Allow me at this stage to address a special and deep hearted thanks to His Majesty the King Mohammed VI, for His continued support and efforts towards initiatives like the Future We Want, where youth have the privileged opportunity to gather, debate and provide innovative solutions to world issues and challenges.

This initiative is the result of important joint efforts, and it is fully committed to inspire and catalyze positive consultations and talks between young leaders, experts, and diplomats from and on the African Continent.

In this regard, the Italian Diplomatic Academy, when it decided to support this conference along with our partners World Council for Youth and Diplomacy and the United Nations Association of the Kingdom of Morocco, was determined to contribute by creating this important gathering to enhance thoughts and talks on Africa situation and by empowering youth from Africa and beyond to build a momentum for reflections and strength. IDA, since its inception has shown a particular orientation and keenness to address global issues by generating positive dialogue.

Africa is at a critical juncture in its development trajectory. Policies adopted now will determine how quickly the continent accelerates growth and creates prosperity for all. In 2015, African countries signed up to two important development agendas: the global 2030 Sustainable Development Goals (SDG), which aims to leave no one behind as countries develop, and the African Union's Agenda 2063, which sets out a blueprint for the "Africa we want". A decade away from the SDG endpoint, African countries continue to search for policy mixes to help accelerate the achievement of these targets. However, for many countries, financing remains the biggest bottleneck with implementing capacity a close second.

Transitioning to the Africa We Want is within our reach. Africa is making steady progress in building the critical ingredients for sustainable and resilient societies, but progress towards achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) is slow and uneven across the continent. Access to basic infrastructure such as energy, water and sanitation services is improving but falls well below the global average. Effective implementation of Agenda 2063 and the 2030

Agenda for Sustainable Development requires African countries to scale up investments in science, technology, and innovation to promote rapid and inclusive growth. The costs of these investments are enormous and require increased resource mobilization.

IDA congratulates the important efforts made by countries of the African Union and especially the structural and systematic engagement made by the Kingdom of Morocco, which, under the wise guidance of His Majesty the King, Mohammed the VI, has undertaken significant investments in several African countries and by de facto enhancing the spirit and re-designing the real meaning of the south-south cooperation.

Within this framework allow me to express my most sincere appreciation and gratitude to you all for being with us and for deciding to join our efforts in providing Africa with the best and most constructive ideas to accelerate the regional integration and by reinforcing its security by establishing a long-lasting peace among its nations and peoples. I'd like to conclude by wishing a fruitful conversation to all our panelist and by recalling two important pillars in which IDA believes the most:

- A well-connected Africa with a sustained peace and political stability will ensure the largest unexploited market and energy tank for the world
- How can the world believe in Africa's relevance and strategic asset and potential if Africa and africans can't trust itself.

Ladies and Gentlemen, thank you for the attention.

Prof. Abramo A. Chabib
Executive Director
Italian Diplomatic Academy

ITALIAN DIPLOMATIC ACADEMY

The main sponsor of the FWWUN Conference is the Italian Diplomatic Academy (IDA). IDA is an NGO associated with the UN Department of Global Communications, a proud member of the United Nations Academic Impact and member of the Sustainable Development Solutions Network: a Global Initiative for the United Nations. IDA is a not-for-profit organization based in Verona but it works throughout all Italy and Europe to provide trainings to youngsters and young professionals regarding international affairs and diplomacy, with a particular focus on the knowledge of UN principles and mission.

IDA acts as a privileged atrium for vibrant and high-level intellectual debate. Distinguished students aiming to undertake world-class knowledge and first-hand experiences apply upgrading their status and getting ready for international careers job market challenges. Indeed, IDA's unique core concept is to provide high-level intensive programs and on-field projects, which may be attended during the academic year along side with normal university and high school classrooms or professional activities.

Under the guidance of a world-class faculty, IDA's students reconsider the past, think critically about the present and work to develop their academic and professional skills in ways that will shape and improve the future. What they truly develop is a deep situational awareness and methodical critical thinking about international relations, world politics and the UN activities and principles.

This commitment to excellence has been a very key ingredient in the establishment of the Italian Diplomatic Academy and in the design and conceptualization of its academic offer. The latter includes specialized, quality-driven training programs addressed to those wishing to work in the international careers, besides to round tables, workshops, meeting on international issues all characterized by a career-oriented attitude. IDA has specific training programs related to the national parliamentary institutions, the European Union and the United Nations.

Within this framework IDA has received several important recognitions from prominent personalities and institutions at both national and international level. In particular, it has received the medal "Medaglia di Grande Formato" from the President of the Italian Republic; the Medal from the President of the Italian Parliament, in addition to specific appreciations from the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the European Commission, the Italian Ministry of Education and from several UN officials.

FWWMUN YOUTH AMBASSADOR FOR SDGS AND THE 2030 AGENDA INITIATIVE

The Future We Want MUN Youth Ambassadors for SDGs and 2030 Agenda initiative aims to strengthen youth commitment and activism in achieving the Sustainable Development Goals and the 2030 Agenda. The launch of the "SDGs Youth Ambassador Initiative" signifies that the relationship with youth extends beyond the conference.

It is the only opportunity offered to more than 2000 young UN advocates and aspiring diplomats to continue to focus on the implementation of the SDGs within their communities at local level, post conference. Our tracking system, and the establishment of Regional Coordinators and Country Representatives in all areas of the world, allow a thorough and coordinated action in the SDGs implementation and in building a structured dialogue on this regard with institutions in more than 100 countries.

Young Leaders are provided with action points and guidelines on how to take actions and raise awareness about the Sustainable Development Goals in their local communities.

The Secretariat will then post on social media platforms and on the official website the actions taken by the youth ambassadors and will directly report to the SDGs Action Campaign or any other relevant organization. We will also work closely with the NGO/DGC Executive Committee, making this information accessible to civil society and member states.

Future We Want

A Global Initiative For Young Leaders

MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY GENERAL

Fellow delegates and distinguished guests.

It is with great honor that I welcome you here in Marrakech for the Future We Want: A Global Initiative for Young Leaders- Morocco Model United Nations 2022 conference, for the first time held in an African country: our beautiful Morocco.

This occasion will bring together 1000 young leaders and Diplomats to discuss, debate and develop resolutions with the hope of making the world a better place for all.

The Future We Want project was launched in 2018 by the World Council for Youth and Diplomacy. Today, it is one of the largest initiatives in the world that aims at providing the tools for young people to engage with the day-to-day reality of the work conducted by the United Nations and its affiliated entities. Future We Want engages dozens of thousands of youths from more than 140 countries and offers them a privileged platform for debate, discussion and skills empowerment by engaging them in real decision-making processes.

By embodying the roles of distinguished diplomats and guests, we must harness the full potential of all generations in order to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals and the 2030 Agenda. Solidarity across generations is the key to secure a successful collaboration and a sustainably smooth transition. This will enable future young leaders to ensure that “no one is left behind.”

As a catalyst for change, you will be contributing to the United Nations’ work by creating effective social connections. As young ambassadors, you will be representing your communities and you will be the symbol of change. Thanks to your innovative problem-solving skills, you will provide help to confront the ever-growing challenges facing the global community nowadays.

The ultimate aim of the international community is that of providing safety and prosperity for people around the world, no matter their background. There are constant threats hanging upon the fulfillment of these goals, but the difficulties that face us shall be the very reasons that make us want to strive harder. As Ban Ki-Moon once said, “This Earth is our only home. Together, we must protect and cherish it”. Throughout this conference I invite you to think about these words of wisdom, hoping that they will guide you just like they guided me in following the steps of a remarkable Secretary General.

Ladies and gentlemen, thank you for your attention. I trust that you will enjoy and actively participate in this Global Initiative for Young Leaders that has been put together by remarkable colleagues.

I hope you will all have a fruitful conference, and I am sure you will enjoy the beauty of the city of Marrakech! Thank you

Salim Zridi

WORLD COUNCIL FOR YOUTH AND DIPLOMACY

The World Council for Youth and Diplomacy is a New York-based, independent, not-for-profit global organisation that is dedicated to facilitating the global exchange of ideas and knowledge and building bridges for understanding and cooperation. The WCYD is a non partisan membership organization fully committed to inform, inspire, and mobilize the World's Civil Society to support the principles and activities of the United Nations and to contribute building the next generation of leaders by engaging Youth with Diplomatic, Political and Economic global Leaders.

In order to accomplish its mission, the organization relies on its global network of professionals and international experts: among its members there are professionals and experts from several IGOs and NGOs executing their field missions all over the world.

This international network of experts allows the organization to boost its activities through highly qualitative and impact-oriented initiatives. The initiatives are designed to address and to involve thousands of people, with particular focus on youngsters, with the final aim to build on the academic and social skills of the Global Leaders of tomorrow.

Thanks to its quality-driven initiatives and programs worldwide, during the years 2018-2020 the WCYD was able to engage more than 14,000 of youths and experts to generate and implement programs that were able to impact more than 1,5 million people in the different continents.

RESOLUTION GUIDELINES

Your solution to the problems that the committee confronts take the form of a resolution. Resolutions represent the committee's final attempt to draw together the interests of many competing nations into a comprehensive solution that serves the interests of the collective world community.

Every good resolution should merit description by the "Three Cs": Comprehensive, Collaborative, and Conceivable. Virtually all the problems that the UN tackles are quite complex - for a resolution to be a good solution to a problem of global importance it must be comprehensive. If the resolution is to gain enough support to be passed by the committee, then it must also be collaborative. Finally, if the resolution is to gain the approval of the chairs, then it must be conceivable. The realistic resolution takes into account UN limitations and the current international balance of power so as to make the most effective use of diplomacy.

COMMITTEE: UN COMMISSION ON SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

TOPIC: INTERNATIONAL NEWSFLOW IMBALANCE

Sponsors: United Kingdom, Austria

Signatories: Algeria, United States Colombia, United Kingdom, South Africa, Portugal, Republic of Korea, and Spain

The Economic and Social Council,

Noting its Resolution, A/36/89 of 16 December 1981, "The Declaration on Fundamental Principles Concerning the Contribution of the Mass Media to Strengthening Peace and International Understanding,"

Noting further Article 19 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, "Everyone has the right to [...] receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers,"

Recognizing that the problem of newsflow imbalance is that two-way information among countries of a region is either non-existent or insufficient and information exchanged between regions of the world is inadequate,

Realizing the need for all sovereign nations to maintain their integrity and still play an active role in the international system,

1. Recommends that a three-level information interchange system be established on the National, Regional, and International levels to ameliorate the current problems of newsflow imbalance, operating as follows:

- a. Each region's member nations will report their national information and receive the information of other nations in their region from the regional level of this interchange system;
- b. Nations will decide the character of the newsflow media best suited to the need of their sovereign territory, be this printed, audio, or audio-visual;
- c. Regional News Gathering Agencies will serve to gather information from the nations in their region, and these boards will have no editorial discretion and will serve to forward all information to the International Board;
- d. Each regional agency will be composed of representatives from every member nation of the region;
- e. The primary function of the International Board will be to translate information accumulated from the regional news gathering agencies;
- f. The secondary purpose will be to transmit all information gathered back to the member nations via the regional news gathering agencies;
- g. In order to expedite the transfer of information from the international to regional level the International Board will utilize a UN frequency on an EEC (European Economic Community) satellite;

2. Urges the establishment of the University of International Communications, with main branch in Geneva, Switzerland, and additional branches located in each of the aforementioned regions, to pursue the following aims:

- a. The University and branches will be established with the express purpose of bringing together world views and facilitating the transfer of technology;
- b. All member nations of the United Nations will be equally represented at the University;
- c. Incentives will be offered to students of journalism and communications at the University to return to their countries to teach upon completion of instruction;
- d. The instructors of the regional education centres will be comprised of a multi-partisan coalition of educators from throughout the world;

3. Calls for the continued use of funds from the International Program for the Development of Communications, Special Account, UNESCO, the UNDP, and other sources of funding including national governments and private donors;

4. Further recommends that the distribution of funds be decided by the IPDC.

MODEL UNITED NATIONS ALLIANCE

The MUN Alliance was launched on 2018 by the World Council for Youth and Diplomacy as a global movement's platform to empower MUN Club and MUN Organizations worldwide. The MUN Alliance strives to create a coordinated platform of academic and logistics higher standards for MUN Clubs and MUN Organizations engaged in the organization of the model united nations or simulations of other international organizations. The full purpose is to allow MUN Clubs worldwide to be in a position to organize their events with reduced costs and highest quality standards by improving their institutional appeal and marketing.

The MUN Alliance is a membership-based platform to empower youth set up their MUN club and creating the necessary budget for its management and success. The overall process is delivered and managed in strict compliance with the UN regulations.

AWARDS POLICY

We, at FWWMUN are primarily concerned with providing each delegate an enjoyable and educational experience. We firmly believe that this conference is an opportunity for youngsters to learn about international relations, public speaking, and the challenges of high-level diplomacy through first-hand experience. Above all else, we hope that delegates leave the conference as better informed global citizens who are better able to engage others in conversations about important world issues than when they first arrived. However, we also value the recognition of students and delegations that have contributed to the conference in exemplary ways. At the Closing Ceremony, the Secretariat will announce individual and delegation awards. The committee dais will determine individual awards on the basis of the following criteria:

- Ability to work with and persuade other delegates through in-depth explanations and convincing arguments;
- Quality of position papers and attendance at all committee sessions;
- Adherence to all FWWMUN policies;
- Demonstrable desire to compromise, while adhering to the policies and interests of the assigned individual or country;
- Ability to develop and convey pragmatic and actionable solutions, both verbally and in written form;
- Responsiveness to crisis elements and ability to problem solve;
- Demonstrable in-depth understanding of the intricacies of the topic area(s); and,
- Skill and effectiveness in caucusing, resolution-writing, and debate.

The types of awards available at FWWMUN are:

- One Best Position Paper per Committee
